- Great needle drops,
great soundtrack

- Wagner Moura
did very well, & is also
very attractive

- Great story told in
an almost anecdotal
style. Puts a human
up to the film from Brazil.

- Upon watching, feel
a bit disappointed I
didn't see what happens
at the end but that's
kinda the point(?)

- Easily the best
needle drops of every
movie that I saw that came out in 2025. If
it weren't for Sinners,
I'd have this @ best
score.

- Chills w/ every scene
involving the proximity
devices that chime
when together. So painful
initially when faced w/

danger, then so rewarding & comforting @ the end
when Bob & Willa reunite.

- Cinematography was insane. Every shot was so masterful.

- Overall a FANTASTIC movie. I still have Sinners overall trash.

- 4th wall breaks &
scenes that were clearly
shot in the middle of the day were so funny.

- In disbelief of how daredevil
close to copyright this movie got.

- As a firm BTTF fan,
this was SO fun.

- Laugh out loud funny, just
bit after bit, two comedian
duos just having fun.

- Every single wiff & line
just oozing w/ BTTF.
Had so much style, and
callbacks to 2005 were so
funny.

- The Hangover scene where he realizes he's in 2008 because
of audience reception to "Dr.
Fussot" was worth the Forrest
part.

- Just as heart-breaking as the first time. Every scene that made me emotional before has the networks coming again.
 - The soundtrack is so good, the flashback being every emotional scene.
 - What a stacked cast. Tim Carrey, Kate Winslet, Mark Ruffalo, Kirstin Dunst, Elijah Wood? Knocked it out.
- "How happy is the blameless ritual's lot! / The long forerunning by the world forgot / Eternal sunshine of the spotless mind! / Each pray'r accepted, and each wish resign'd."

- Such a faithful adaptation to the book. So so happy w/ how they did everything, and the casting was perfect.
- Cinematography was so good. Greig Fraser knocks it right out. So many cool shots & transitions.
- Felt maternal for Rocky just like in the book.
- Regal Ontario crowd a bit questionable, but theater size was HUGE. Same size as Inme Spectrum, but seats a bit closer to the screen.
- AMAZE! AMAZE! AMAZE!

-As I watch this movie for the first time in a long time, I'm reminded how sweet the movie is, and how heartbreaking it is as well.

-The messages of continuing on and persevering when things seem hard/impossible really hit there.

-Joe Hisaishi fucking cooked. So much whimsy and joy and innocent interest.

-Felt myself tearing up knowing when it was going to be the last time Kiki understood Jiji. So so so heartbreaking.

-I don't personally know what girlhood is like, but it feels like this truly encapsulates what it feels like.

-A masterclass in storytelling, animation, artistry score. Top 2 Whihli for me to be honest.
